DON'T SIGN ANNEXATION PETITION--KEEP GLENDALE ON THE MAP

CITY COUNCIL BUYS 33 ACRES ON SAN FERNANDO FOR AIRPORT IN GLENDALE

R. L. Kent Makes Announcement of Purchase and Plans of the Projected Operation

TO BE OF GREAT BENEFIT TO GLENDALE

Roy Kent, William Reeves, W. E. Hewitt and Dr. T. C. Young Complete Detail Study

The city has bought 33 acres for an airport on San Fernando boulevard in the western section of the city, according to a statement issued yesterday by Roy Kent.

The announcement follows:

"Glendale, the fastest growing city in America, is to have the first permanent municipal aero landing field in Southern California. The Glendale Chamber of Commerce through Roy L. Kent, assisted by City Manager William Reeves, W. E. Hewitt and Dr. T. C. Young, have been working out the details for the past month and now announce the consummation of the project that makes the field a possibility.

"These gentlemen have convinced the city officials of Glendale that the future has great possibilities in store for the air craft game and they are determined to take the lead and give all possible encouragement to those interested in aviation either from a commercial or pleasure standpoint.

"The city has purchased a beautiful tract of 33 acres which will be a big asset for water development purposes, and the surface areas will all be available for aircraft purposes. This tract is wonderfully situated for the purpose, and it is said by experts in flying that this is the most ideal location for an air port in Southern California, lying as it does on the San Fernando Boulevard in the western section of the city of Glendale.

"The property adjoins the Southern Pacific Railway, which will give Air Craft Manufacturers the advantage of spur tracks.

"Several aerial passenger lines will be established here within the next few months which will use this field as their Los Angeles terminus.

"Passengers will be placed in the city in twenty to thirty minutes by bus lines which run past the field via Pacific Electric red cars only one block away.

"This in itself places this field far ahead of any other proposed or existing landing field adjacent to Los Angeles.

"By March 1 those wishing quick transportation will have the privilege of making reservations on an airship with all the comforts of a parlor car and will be landed in San Francisco in five hours after leaving here.

"The Glendale air port comprises a total area of 47 acres with a five hundred-foot landing field seventeen hundred feet long running northwest and southeast, which is said to be ideal in this district.

"This field has been approved by the Aero Club, and a large number of private and commercial air men.

"It is predicted that this field will attract a large majority of those in the game for the sport as well as those interested commercially.

"It will be possible to lease hangar space by the year for a very nominal rental.

"The action of the council of the city of Glendale in taking this forward step is very creditable and the citizens of Glendale should feel very proud in having such men with vision and foresight in charge of city affairs.

"It is expected that the postal authorities will institute an aerial mail line between this port and New York similar to the line between San Francisco and New York. The field will be planned so that it will present an artistic appearance, the commercial and manufacturing district will be along the railroad and the private hangars will be placed on the opposite side of the field.

"The field will have a fitting approach and probably some standard type of hangar required in order to maintain an appearance of beauty."

HIGH SCHOOL IS PREPARING FOR XMAS CAROLS

Today's Song Is "Oh! Come All Ye Faithful"; Its History

Plans for the big community Christmas tree celebration which is the first feature of the varied community service program scheduled for Christmas night, with the beautiful and natural setting of the high school grounds, are steadily maturing with increasing enthusiasm each day.

According to Mrs. Gibson, director of music, the high school orchestra will play the "Largo," by Handel, and also "Nazareth," by Gounod. The orchestra will, in addition, play the accompaniment for the Christmas hymns which will be sung by the audience. The Girls' Glee club will sing a group of old traditional melodies, and the boys' Glee club will sing the "Three Kings of the Orient."

Each day this paper will publish a carol so that the community will become familiar with these beautiful songs. Today's carol is "Oh! Come All Ye Faithful." It is as follows:

Oh! Come All Ye Faithful
Adeste Fideles

Oh, come, all ye faithful, joyful and triumphant;
Oh, come ye, oh come ye to Bethlehem;
Come and behold Him, born the King of angels.

After Each Verse:
Oh, come, let us adore Him,
Oh, come, let us adore Him,
Oh, come, let us adore Him,
Christ, the Lord. Amen.

Sing, choirs of angels, sing in exultation,
Sing all ye citizens of heav'n above;
Glory to God in the highest.

Yea, Lord, we greet Thee, born this happy morning;
Jesus, to Thee be glory giv'n;
Word of the Father, now in flesh appearing.

It is not surprising that this sturdy, whole-hearted tune (sung with its alternative text, "How Firm a Foundation") was the favorite hymn of that full-blooded American, Theodore Roosevelt. His preference has been shared by hundreds of thousands of men, women and children throughout the world.

The text of 'Oh Come All Ye Faithful," is translated from a Latin hymn of the 17th or 18th century. The original words, beginning Adeste Fideles, are still frequently used. The translation which we sing was made in England by the Rev. Frederick Oakley about 1850.

The source of the music is not definitely known. Various reasons are given for its name—the Portuguese Hymn. Some investigators say it was written by a Portuguese chapel-master named Marcus Portugal; others that it was first sung in the Portuguese chapel, in London, but was written by an English organist named John Reading.

But whether this joyful, manly hymn be the work of this or that man, or like a folk song, the combined product of several men, it is one of the hymns of the ages which apparently is to live for centuries. When we sing it we are keeping alive the spirit and expression which stirred many happy folks who have gone before and countless numbers who will follow after us.

PACIFIC ELECTRIC TRAFFIC DELAYED

The interruption in the service of the Pacific Electric cars between Glendale and Los Angeles this morning was caused by a truck becoming stuck in the company's tracks between Figueroa and Flower streets at 6 o'clock this morning. For about one hour cars were unable to proceed in either direction, this making it impossible for a large number of those living in Glendale and employed in Los Angeles to reach the city on time.

EXPIRATION DATE CAUSED SPECIAL MEETING CALL

Why No Public Notice Given of Meeting Which Purchased Land

The special meeting was called Saturday morning, according to City Manager W. H. Reeves this morning, at the request of the committee from the chamber of commerce.

"Herman Nelson represented the East Glendale Advancement association," said Mr. Reeves; "T. C. Young, the Kiwanis club, at the meeting.

"The reason of the meeting was that the option had only one day to run. The owner of the land had an offer of $400 per acre more than we paid, from a company. He was hoping the city would not exercise the option.

"No one was notified of the meeting excepting those mentioned and the councilmen, not even the newspapers."

GLENDALE MOTOR BUS CO. FORMED

C. D. Gulick Announces Plans of New Corporation and Routes

CHEAP FARE TO L. A.

Routes of Service Made Public; Local Service to Be Five Cents

By C. D. GULICK

The first big guns in the new battle for better transportation and lower rates have been fired.

The city council called a special meeting Saturday and passed the following resolution:

"Resolved, that we, the mayor and city council of the city of Glendale will allow and do hereby grant, permits to the Glendale Motor Bus company, to operate over any of the streets of the city of Glendale, necessary to give service in connection with the through line the Glendale Motor Bus company now contemplates establishing between the city of Los Angeles and the city of Glendale.

"Resolved, that the Mayor and the city council of the city of Glendale hereby endorse the contemplated application of the Glendale Motor Bus company to the board of supervisors of the county of Los Angeles, through the mayor and the council of the city of Los Angeles, and the railroad commission of the state of California, for permits to operate motor buses through and upon such described routes as may appear to be necessary in order to complete local and through service between the cities of Glendale and the city of Los Angeles, of the state of California, and hereby agree to petition the said supervisors and the said city council and railroad commissioners aforementioned, that the said motor bus company be granted the permits prayed for, and be it further

"Resolved, that we wish to go on record at this time as heartily endorsing the establishment of the motor bus service between the two cities aforementioned, and do believe that public convenience, necessity and economic conditions demand that a service be established in order that the citizens of Los Angeles and Glendale may have a more rapid, modern and economical means of transportation than is now being offered."

This means that the Glendale Bus Company is at once going to file application from Tujunga to Los Angeles, and from Glendale to Los Angeles, and will also install local motor bus service in Glendale over any streets of this city that the residents on streets will make known to the company that they desire transportation, and that there is sufficient travel support to warrant the purchase of and installation of modern equipment.

So if there are any residents in any districts or streets that feel that they need any transportation and that there is sufficient travel along desired routes they should get in touch with manager of Glendale Motor Bus company at once, phone 1676-R. So there can be definite arrangements made to care for them.

As to the Los Angeles application, it is the present plan of the company to file over three routes to Los Angeles, one from Tujunga, via Glendale avenue and Brand boulevard; Glendale to Los Angeles, via San Fernando road; fares, one way, 15c; round trip, 25c.

One line from Brand and Broadway, Glendale, to yellow car line, via Sagamore Canyon, fare 10c. One line, via Glendale boulevard, to yellow car lines, north of business and congested area, Los Angeles, 10c.

It is expected that the bus company can arrange transfer privileges with the yellow car company.

The company promises to have nothing but the lateest and best known type of modern safety buses, which you all know will be some cars, if they are like some of the cars that have been seen in Glendale within the last few months. The bus company managers say that they will be as good and in many respects superior to anything yet seen in California, equipped with air brakes and all other known safety devices.

All the Glendale local service will be furnished at the rate of five cents for each three miles, or fraction thereof, in any continuous route or direction.

The company hopes to establish routes that will give the most service and accommodations to the greatest number of citizens, especially to the school children, both grammar and high schools, and ask that all interested individuals, clubs, civic organizations and business firms, at once get in touch with the business manager in order that local routes can be determined upon at once, as the company will start the local service as soon as the details and arrangements can be settled as the company has already secured the permits from the city of Glendale for the local service.

It will take considerable effort to secure the permits for the through lines, and will require the combined effort of each and every individual and civic organization in the city of Glendale. Therefore, if you want to see this line go do not fail to let the company know who and where you are.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE JUBILANT OVER THE AIR PORT DEVELOPMENT

Glendale City Council, It Is Declared, Has Practical Co-operation in Purchasing Land for $66,000 As Required

AIRPLANE FACTORIES ARE PROMISED

Directors of Chamber Adopt Resolutions Opposing Annexation As Individuals and Ordering a Referendum of the Entire Membership

By GERTRUDE GIBBS

The culmination of the efforts of the Chamber of Commerce and the city council, working together, resulting in the expenditure by the city council of $66,000 for the purchase of 33 acres on San Fernando road for an airport, was the subject of jubilation at the meeting Monday evening of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce.

It was said four airplane manufacturers and passenger-carrying lines would follow.

A resolution conveying the thanks of the chamber to the city trustees, to City Manager Reeves and Dr. T. C. Young was unanimously adopted and Secretary Rhoades was instructed to send copies to the men thus thanked. The chamber also formally adopted the roport of the budget committee and voted to reemploy for another year J. M. Rhoades as secretary, and E. F. Sanders as assistant secretary, on the same terms. A vote of opposition to annexation was taken and arrangements made for a referendum ballot.

In speaking of the air port proposition, Secretary Rhoades this morning said:

"Four airplane manufacturing plants have promised to come to Glendale as soon as a municipal airport should be established, also three passenger carrying air lines, one running from here to San Francisco, one to the Imperial Valley and one to San Diego. Negotiations are also pending for the location here of the club house and club headquarters of the Aerial Club of Southern California.

"Besides these public enterprises a great many private airship owners will rent space on the airport grounds for hangars. It will also be a station for airship supplies and gasoline.

"All this will yield a revenue which will recompense the city for its outlay, which was primarily for water conservation, as the city's wells are located at this point and the trustees desired to protect the city against the location of other wells in that immediate neighborhood which might lower its supply. In the meantime the surface can be utilized for this air port.

"The credit for this happy consummation effected with the purchase of the land by the city last Friday, should go first to all of the members of the city council, second to Roy Kent, who has worked diligently on the proposition, third to City Manager Reeves, and fourth to Dr. T. C. Young.

"The city council made it possible to land this project on which the chamber has been at work for a long time and which I regard as one of the biggest things that has ever come to Glendale. The men who will be employed by this enterprise are strangers who otherwise would never have come, and the publicity this city will receive the world over will recompense it for the expenditure many times over.

"The land is worth much more than the city council paid for it, viz. $2,000 an acre. No one made a dime out of the transaction. It was all done for the good of the city. It is this kind of cooperation and this kind of team work that builds big cities."

The report on this project was made by Secretary Rhoades and was enthusiastically received by members who adopted unanimously the vote of thanks to the city council members and others.

The full membership was present, President Jesse Smith presiding.

Annexation was discussed and the following resolution was adopted: "Resolved, that the Board of Directors of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce go on record as being opposed individually to the annexation of Glendale to Los Angeles, and that a referendum ballot be sent out immediately to the entire membership of the chamber, requesting each member to vote according to his convictions." The ballots are to be returned Saturday noon, December 16, at 12 m., and a committee will be appointed to take charge of the referendum election.

New members were elected as follows:

Globe Builders' Supply Co., 214 W. Broadway, builders' supplies; South Glendale Variety Store, 1413 S. San Fernando road; Pacific House Moving Company, 1338 W. Girard St., Los Angeles, house moving; Jot C. Wood, 630 E. Lomita, cigars; Fred B. Walton, 670 W. Lexington Drive, manager Webb's Men's Shop; Mrs. Frances A. Grant, 622 S. Louise, voice culture; Doloras Toilet Articles, 121 S. Central Avenue, toilet preparations; Dr. Orrie E. Ghrist, 134 S. Adams street, eye, ear, nose and throat; L. A. Stacy, 225 E. Broadway, real estate and insurance; The Hub Pharmacy, 259 S. Glendale avenue, drugs; Magnolia Garage, 914 S. San Fernando road, garage and battery service; Glendale Beauty Shoppe, 103-A N. Brand.

COMMANDERY HAS A VERY PLEASANT MEETING

At the regular meeting of Glendale Sommandery Monday evening, the Order of the Temple was bestowed upon F. G. Beckner, he being the only candidate who showed up.

The six o'clock dinner proved a very pleasant social affair and members together with all resident and visiting knights in the city were invited to the installation of officers for the coming year, to be held next Monday night. It will be preceded by a dinner for which reservations should be made before Friday through the retiring commander, George U. Moyse, or the commander-elect, Roy V. Hogue.

The commandery was also invited to be present when the new blue lodge, or Glendale Lodge U. D. is instituted on Saturday night of the present week, John Sleeland being its worshipful master. Its charter will not be received until next October. As Unity lodge No. 368 now has a membership of about 500 it was thought wise to organize another blue lodge in order to distribute the work and afford greater participation. Unity lodge, of which Dwight Stephenson is the retiring worshipful master, and H. A. Strong the worshipful master-elect, will also be represented among the guests of the new lodge.

THE WEATHER

Southern California: Tonight and Wednesday, rain.

Los Angeles and vicinity: Unsettled weather tonight and Wednesday with probably occasional rain.

GROUND BREAKING FOR SANITARIUM ON DEC. 17

The ground-breaking ceremonies for the new Glendale Sanitarium will be held next Sunday the 17th at 2 p. m. instead of the 25th of December. The contract, it is expected, will not be let until after the first of January in order that it may be included in the budget for the year 1923. Plenty of time has been taken to insure the perfection of the plans and the project marks a big advance in the work of the Glendale Sanitarium. It also means much to Glendale to have an institution of renown branch out and house itself in buildings beautiful and suitable for the curative work it is carrying on.

SCHOOL IS ROBBED

The Glendale avenue intermediate school was broken into sometime during Saturday or Sunday and a number of articles taken, none of which has as yet been recovered. The report was turned in by N. R. Whytock, principal of that school.

COMMUNITY SING CALL IS ISSUED

Col. Everington Sets First Date As Dec. 18 at Glendale High

LEADER TO ATTEND

Varied Musical Program to Be Given Including Christmas Carols

At a meeting of the executive committee of Glendale Community Service, held Monday noon at the Broadway Inn, with V. M. Hollister presiding, the report of the budget committee, as submitted by B. D. White, was enthusiastically discussed. It was brought out that the Glendale chamber of commerce was most efficient in the work of bringing to Glendale hundreds of people who establish homes here, but that nothing in this city is bringing together all of the interests as a unit and making for neighborly spirit, harmony and developing community morale, as is being done in other places where a Community Service program of recreation is in operation.

It was voted that a budget will be necessary for the promotion of the varied leisure time program consisting of drama, community music, vacation playgrounds, which will doubtless be located in three sections of the city, neighborhood recreation, holiday programs and athletic activities for those beyond high school age.

Detailed plans are being formed by the finance committee, headed by Jesse Smith, for raising the budget.

Discussion also brought out the fact that some people are under the impression that the city of Glendale must pay the National Community Service organization for its aid here, but not a penny raised in Glendale goes to the national organization, it being an endowment organization for promoting a practical Americanization program, which uses as its medium all forms of recreation. Neither does the national organization dictate as to who they shall hire as a local executive to direct the work. The executive committee of Glendale Community Service is entirely in charge of choosing whom they wish for a director, it was stated.

COUNCILMEN KIMLIN AND DAVIS EXPLAIN PURCHASE OF LAND FOR AIR PORT

Acted on Recommendation of P. Deiderich, Manager of Plant and Production Department of City, It Is Said at the City Hall

PROBLEM OF WATER SUPPLY IS PURPOSE

Roy L. Kent Turns Over Option He Held on Land Without Advancing Original Price, It Is Said by City Officials

The purchase of the 33 acres in the northwest section of Glendale by the city, to be used for aviation and industrial purposes, was made on the suggestion of P. Dederich, manager of the plant and production department of the city, according to a statement given out by Councilman Kimlin this morning. This ground was primarily secured for the purpose of assuring Glendale an adequate water supply for all years to come, he said. The present water supply with the water that can be developed on this land in the future, will furnish water for a city of 500,000, said Councilman Davis.

There is a considerable frontage along the southern Pacific tracks, which portion of the land will be leased out for industrial purposes. The other outer portions of this property will be leased to those wishing to construct hangars for aircraft. The revenue received from the leasing of this land will take care of the interest on deferred payments and also the payments as they come due, according to Councilman Davis, and he said, will be an asset rather than a liability to the city. The land purchased adjoins on the north the 14 acres already owned by the city.

The 33 acres was purchased by the city from J. D. Radcliff of Burbank. Roy L. Kent, who had secured an option on this land some time ago for $2000 an acre, offered to turn his option over to the city without commission of any kind, according to Mr. Davis and City Manager Reeves.

The terms on which the property was secured are, according to the councilman, as follows: $16,500 cash, and the remainder in two, three and four years, this bringing the deferred payments up to $12,400 each. The purchase was effected Saturday morning at a meeting of the parties interested, and at that time the papers were signed.

ELKS' LODGE TO CELEBRATE SAN FERNANDO

At the regular meeting of Glendale lodge of Elks, No. 1289, held Monday night, plans were made for next week's meeting which will be celebrated as "San Fernando night." There will be a surprise in store for those attending and the meeting will also include initiation and an entertainment. At the close of the business session last night Captain A. E. Folger gave a very interesting talk on his thirty years' experience as captain of a whaling vessel. He also displayed many relics and antiques collected on his many voyages. The method of whaling before it became as commercialized and scientific as it is now was also described by him.

Preparations are being made for the annual New Year's dinner-dance, to be given by the local Elks lodge on Saturday, December 30. This will be for Elks and their lady guests only. Members of the order will be privileged to invite an extra lady guest but no extra men.

SALVATION ARMY COLLECTIONS REPORTED

Julius Kranz, treasurer of the committee responsible for the Salvation Army drive of which D. Ripley Jackson is chairman, reports that he has banked to the credit of the army about $1,400; that several team reports are unchecked, but when all returns are counted he fears they will not exceed $2,000. The drive came at an unfavorable season, he said, following the Red Cross membership drive and several other canvasses for funds, also at a time when many citizens were feeling the pinch of tax-paying.

CREDIT MEN ASK SPEED IN MAIL COLLECTION

Seek More Frequent Deliveries From Boxes to the Postoffice

The matter of more frequent mail collections in the residential districts of Glendale was the principal question under discussion at the regular meeting of the Glendale Credit association Monday, held in the chamber of commerce auditorium.

It was the opinion of those present, that mail was not collected often enough in the residential sections, that is, mail dropped in a street box at night was not collected until the middle of the next morning and did not reach the postoffice until that afternoon. A committee was appointed to look into this matter. The members of the committee include Dr. Roy V. Hogue, Archie Parker and A. T. Cowan. They will report back at the next meeting of the association.

The proposition of cashing bad checks was also discussed and a motion was made by Harry A. Kent and seconded by H. S. Webb that a committee be appointed to confer with bank officials to see if they could clear the checks a little later in the morning and give back a report early in the afternoon of any bad checks. This committee was appointed.

There were 50 members present Monday besides two guests, Will Jay Higgins, connected with the Glendale Creamery company and L. E. Myers of Sierra Madre, who is connected with the H. J. Heins company.

It was also announced that the association could claim a new member, as Seymour Smith of the Glendale Grocerteria was the proud father of a 9 pound boy.

MARLENEE HOME LOOTED

The home of Dr. C. L. Marlenee, 301 South Central avenue, was robbed shortly before 11 o'clock yesterday morning, and up to this time nothing has been learned as to the identity of the thieves. Mrs. Marlenee was on the second floor at the time the thief was operating in the ground floor rooms. A watch and a pocket book containing money were secured.

A Daily Tour of Glendale Stores

DOLORAS TOILET ARTICLES MADE HERE

A color scheme of gray, rose and blue is carried out in the salesroom of the new laboratory and factory by Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Friedman at 121 South Central avenue, very near to Broadway, where the long list of toilet preparations which they manufacture are made under the name "Doloras Toilet Articles," which have been approved by the Pharmaceutical association under the pure food law. These include a cleansing cream, a vanishing cream and a cucumber cream, their own special formulas. They also put out powders, dry and liquid, hand lotions and 21 different toilet waters or concentrated essences.

Their little daughter, Doloras Friedman, who won fourth prize in the best baby contest, and who is their dearest possession, has given her name to the business. They came to Southern California from the East, where they had been engaged in a similar line of manufacturing, and after looking around decided to make Glendale their headquarters in California, and establish branches in other cities as the business grew. These branches will carry out the Doloras color scheme already mentioned, of gray, rose and blue.

ORDER ON GILBERT'S WILL SETTLE XMAS PUZZLE

Hubby, here is the solution for your Christmas gift for your "better half"—why not make it an order for a new chapeaux at Gilbert's millinery shop, conducted at 123 North Brand boulevard, by Mrs. Jane Gilbert? Close upon the heels of the rage for "sheik" pictures comes fashion's decree that turbans shall be worn. The latest along this line are the sheik, folded turbans in Meadowbrook hats, for which Mrs. Gilbert has the agency. These make very serviceable mid-season hats and are also very chic for wearing at dances. The favorite materials are kandy viska and hair cloth in brown, black, silver, old gold, etc. To see them worn is to want one, so don't wait until "she" asks you. Whether it be for wifie or daughter, a new hat is always welcome.

If you are somewhat timid as to making the choice, arrangements can be made with Mrs. Gilbert for an order, the choice to be made by the recipient. A wide selection of mid-season hats in satins is also being shown by Mrs. Gilbert, black and brown seeming to continue their popularity, and these are very reasonably priced.

An attractive assortment of those indescribably dainty French bouquets in pastel colors is also displayed at this popular shop and would make a very pretty little Christmas remembrance.

GLOBE BUILDERS' SUPPLY HAS EVERYTHING NEEDED

Glendale now has in her midst the Globe Builders' Supply company, located at 214 West Broadway. This new store carries practically everything in builders' supplies, including paints, wallpaper, wallboard, glass, linoleum, window shades, nails, ladders, roofing and many other necessities. And upon close inspection of prices one will find that they are among the most reasonable in town.

A. B. Gottlieb, proprietor, has been in this line of business for 11 years, having been formerly connected with a Los Angeles firm of the same type and he knows the business from "A to Z." Mr. Gottlieb states that his main aim is to keep on supplying the demand here so that Glendale people will not have to go to the neighboring city of Los Angeles. He features price, quality and service, and price is one of the main things, for when people are buying merchandise they must consider it because they usually have just a certain amount to spend for such things.

Mr. Gottlieb has taken particular notice of different prices in this line of merchandise, and he can sell it at a much smaller margin and still satisfy the wants of the buying public.

If you are in the market for any kind of builders' supplies, it would be a good plan to drop in and get an estimate.

"GET ACQUAINTED" IDEA IN RANGE

As a "get acquainted" offer, the new Elwood Home Furnishings Company at 227 East Broadway is offering one of the Occidental Gas ranges, No. 42, to the holder of the lucky number.

This new home furnishing store has just recently opened and they are making this unusual offer in order to make the people of Glendale better acquainted with the high quality of goods they carry.

This range would add beauty to any kitchen and it is a perfect baking stove. It has the Pyrex glass oven door and an everlasting cast iron oven bottom.

If you are unable to call at their store, 227 East Broadway, drop them a line and you will receive your number, which may prove lucky at the time of the drawing.

AUDITORIUM OF K. OF C. IS WELL MADE

The new clubhouse auditorium of the Glendale Council Knights of Columbus, though not quite completed, already demonstrates that it is a beautiful auditorium. It has been erected in the rear of the property at 320 East Lomita, recently purchased by the council from Mrs. Dora Glazier, and occupied by her as a home.

The room is 40x70, open to the roof, sealed and cross-beamed on the inside, giving it quite an ecclesiastical appearance. Around three sides is a raised dais where seats will be placed, and across the south end of the room a higher platform or rostrum.

The house proper will need little or no alteration to fit it for the social uses of the organization. It has eight bedrooms, all of which have already been rented to unmarried members of the council.

The plans for the council auditorium were made by Harry Glazier, who also drew the plans and specifications for the parish school to be built on the property owned by the Holy Family church, fronting on Louise, Elk and Lomita avenues.

Mrs. Glazier expects to vacate the house between Christmas and New Years and take possession of a rented house on Garfield avenue, which she will occupy until an apartment house she plans to erect is completed. She has bought a site on Windsor road between Brand and Central and plans to build upon it four five-room apartments for which her son has drafted plans.

Harry Glazier, who is an ex-service man, has been taking a course in architecture at the University of California, Southern Branch, at the expense of the government, and has made an excellent record under Mr. Truesdale, chief instructor in the department.

Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Topliff of 464 West Broadway, returned Saturday evening from a seven months' trip to the East, visiting in Wisconsin, Iowa and other states. They were accompanied on the trip by their son and family, Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Topliff and two children, who expect to make their home here. The trip was made by automobile, and proved a very pleasant one.

Mrs. Edith Cook of Duarte spent the week-end at the home of her brother, George A. Axup, 122 North Adams street, where she was called by the illness of their mother. Mr. Roy Switzer, of the Monrovia News, and wife, joined the family over Sunday.

Mrs. J. E. Rockhold and daughter and Mrs. Rockhold's father, J. C. Bardsley, all of 330 West Burchett street, motored to Riverside over the week end. They brought back to Glendale with them a friend, Mrs. Mary Smith, who will be Mrs. Rockhold's guest over the Christmas holidays.

Howard Rockhold of 330 West Burchett street returned recently from San Francisco and Eureka where he has been spending the past three months. He is now employed with the government at Inglewood.

CARTER MOORE IS AMONG SHERWOOD INSTRUCTORS

The Sherwood Music school, at 214 East Broadway, has among its instructors a well-known dramatic art director, Carter Moore. Mr. Moore will be seen in Pasadena, starting December 11, in a Community Players' production, "Mary Goes First." He is also directing "The Three Wise Men," which is being produced at the Highland Park Presbyterian church.

In an interview with Howard Edward Cavanah, director of the school, he outlined the progressive system under which they work, not only having the private lessons for each pupil on the respective instrument they are studying, but they also have their music theory class every Saturday morning, which each pupil is required to attend. This class is in the nature of a lecture explaining the theory of music. It is also in the nature of an oral review of the pupils' work to the teacher. The pupils are asked questions and asked to express themselves as to the theory, and they find that it keeps them "on their toes."

What People Say of Community Service

A STATE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION:

Community Service in Augusta has done more to arouse the civic spirit of the town and to put a new heart and a greater hope in the people than any other enterprise that we have known. It has brought us together with an unselfish and brotherly purpose that will make us all better in that we are seeking the common good."

LAWTON B. EVANS, Augusta, Ga.

A MAYOR

"I consider Community Service in Wilmington an indispensable agency to stir up the citizens to a realization of the possibilities of citizenship. Neighborhood associations, athletics, playgrounds, concerts, due observance of our great national holidays, summer camps, are all manifestations of its work, the fruit of which is to make better citizens. With best wishes for your continued success all over the United States in the different municipalities."

LEROY HARVEY, Mayor, Wilmington, Delaware.

HUGE CATHEDRAL GOES UP AT UNIVERSAL

Impressive Building for Hunchback of Notre Dame Soon to Be Complete

In spite of rainy weather that visits sunny Southern California in opposition to chamber of commerce bulletins, a corps of technical men and carpenters are making rapid progress on the huge Cathedral of Notre Dame which is being constructed on the brow of a high hill at Universal City for the Universal Super-Jewel screening of Victor Hugo's classic, "The Hunchback of Notre Dame." In this film classic in which Lon Chaney will star under the direction of Wallace Worsley, there are eight Parisian streets to be built besides the impressive cathedral set. Several departments are working overtime on wood and ornamental items. An office 80 by 30 feet in size has been built solely for the use of the artists designing the sets. Three other offices are maintained by the unit.

BOY SCOUTS TO ENTER EXHIBIT AT STATE FAIR

The Boy Scouts of California will compete in the eighth annual public school industrial and vocational contest in connection with the California state fair, according to word just received from E. Franklin, director in charge.

For the past eight years this contest has hen staged annually under the direction of the state agricultural society and it is through the special efforts of Thomas L. Hosmer, scout executive at Sacramento, that the Boy Scout division was made possible.

The average prize is $5 for first place, $3 for second place, and $2 for third place. A sweepstake for the council making best, largest and most varied exhibit will be held in which the cash prizes will consist of first place $25, second place $15 and third place $10.

Following are the things the scouts will make to enter into competition of the contest: Bridge models, tower models, knot boards, bird houses, bows and arrows, drawings and paintings, materials submitted for botany, blacksmithing, metal, carpentry, leather, basketry, pottery, cement, bookbinding, wood carving, machinery, mining, photographs, sculpture, signaling, stalking, taxidemy, maps, and knife work.

It is thought that the 1923 Older Scouts' Conference will again be held at Sacramento and if this proves to be correct the special scouts selected to represent the Verdugo hills district council will take along with them the exhibits for the contest entered by the local scouts.

GIRLS' LEAGUE TO GIVE PARTY IN LOS ANGELES

The Girls' league of Glendale high has changed its plans somewhat and instead of giving a party at the high school for children from the Boyd street school, they will take their gifts and tree to Los Angeles and give the party there next Friday afternoon for 19 little girls and 14 boys whose names have been given them.

Besides this Santa Claus work, the girls will make a Merry Christmas for a number of poor families of whom they have been advised. Members of the Boys' league will also help in the work, although their Christmas fund is not as large as that of the Girls' league.

PREVIEW AT THE GLENDALE TONIGHT

As though Wesley Barry, the freckled-faced favorite in his latest picture, "Rags to Riches," were not enough, William A. Howe, manager of the Glendale Theatre, has added another attraction for this evening, a preview of Wesley Ruggles' latest production for F. B. O. release, "The Remittance Woman," a six-part special production starring Ethel Clayton. In the cast supporting Miss Clayton will be seen Tom Wilson, the big colored comedian, who made such a hit in "Reported Missing," lately shown at this theatre. As is usual, when a preview is given, there will be but one performance at 7:30 and the wise ones will be on hand early.

COMMUNITY SERV. BUDGET APPROVED BY COMMITTEE

Meeting of Executive Forces Is Held at Broadway Inn

Colonel James W. Everington, chairman of Glendale Community Service Christmas celebration committee, has called a community sing to take place Monday night, December 18, at 8 o'clock, in the auditorium of Glendale Union high school. Alexander Stewart, Pacific coast music organizer for the National Community Service, will direct the sing, and has asked all residents of the city to join Glendale's Christmas carolers by attending Monday's meeting. A varied musical program will also be given, and the sing will include Christmas carols and other selections.

L. W. Chobe, chairman of the decorating committee for the Glendale Community Christmas celebration, and Harry Girard, stage manager, met at the high school grounds this morning to work out a plan for decorating.

HIGH PIANISTS TO GIVE CONCERT

Miss Zula Zeigler, head of the piano department of Glendale High is planning to give pupils' recitals after the holidays. She has three classes and Mrs. Gibson states that they are doing very excellent work. She and her classes will assist Mrs. Gibson in preparing the music recommended by the committee headed by Mrs. Gibson for use in piano departments in the schools, and for private classes as well, to supplement or serve as a substitute for the standard course which was hardly elastic enough to be satisfactory. The work was undertaken by Mrs. Gibson at the request of the state board of education and to complete her task the music must be assembled in progressive order and bound to be send to the board at Sacramento. Pupils are interested in the matter and with Miss Zeigler will help.

HIGH MUSICIANS AT L. A. CONCERT

Seventy-five pupils of the music department of Glendale high attended the concert given a few nights ago by the Flute Players' club of Los Angeles in Bovard auditorium. Miss Zula Zeigler represented the musical faculty and reports a very artistic performance.

Mrs. Gibson says there is a revival of interest in the flute, Los Angeles having started the movement by the organization of the club referred to. Several other cities have followed the example and London now has a flute players' club. It is one of the oldest of musical instruments and one which can hardly be replaced for certain effects. The inauguration of jazz with its demand for loud instruments for a time shunted the flute into the background, but it is coming into its own again.

TUESDAY CLUB TO RAISE PRICE OF LIFE MEMBERS

Executive Board Decides to Increase After First Hundred

The vital topic of money matters in connection with the new clubhouse of the Tuesday Afternoon Club provided discussion at the meeting of the executive board which was held Monday at the home of Mrs. A. H. Montgomery, 415 South Central avenue, with Mrs. Daniel Campbell, president, in charge. The members of the board are anxious to secure more life memberships, and it was decided that after 100 had been secured that they would recommend that the life membership fee, which at present is $100, be raised. The club now has secured seventy life members. Mrs. A. H. Montgomery, first vice-president and chairman of ways and means, announced an auction sale to be conducted in January, articles for which are to be donated. Nothing definite has been reported as yet by the sections of the club as to their plans for making money to finance the securing of various articles of furnishings for the new clubhouse which they have undertaken to do. All members of the executive board were present and a delicious luncheon was served at noon.

HIGH TRUSTEES' MEETING TO BE HELD TONIGHT

BLOCK PRINTS SHOWN AT HIGH

The promised exhibition of block prints by F. Gerity is now on in the art department of Glendale high and is proving of great interest to the students. It is the same collection that was shown at the museum of fine arts in Los Angeles and the general public is welcome to come and inspect it at any time from 10 to 4 in the domestic arts building, second floor.

Miss Abbott, head of the art department, says pupils are utilizing their art knowledge in the making of Christmas gifts and just "playing around," as she phrases their activities, painting trays, making incense burners, and doing a variety of things with enamel paint.

DEATHS — FUNERALS

MRS. MARY K. SMITH
Mrs. Mary K. Smith passed away December 11 at a local hospital. Mrs. Smith was a widow and was a native of Rhode Island.

Mrs. Smith had no relatives here, but was a dear friend of Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Baker of 215 West Milford street. She was a member of the Eastern Star and of the N. P. Banks Relief Corps.

Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the chapel of L. G. Scovern Company. The body will be shipped to Rhode Island for interment. Rev. Philip Kemp, rector of St. Mark's Episcopal Church will officiate.

The path of duty generally parallels the road to happiness.

There is something wrong with a small boy who isn't strenuous.

Being able to accomplish wonders is what makes a man a liar.

The policeman was giving evidence, and was being strictly cross-examined by the magistrate.

"Now be careful," said the interlocutor. "What was the prisoner doing?"

"'E was 'avin' a very 'eated argument with a taxi driver, yer worship."

"But that doesn't prove he was drunk," said the magistrate.

"No," replied the policeman, smiling reminiscently; "but there wasn't a taxi driver there!"

WARNING ISSUED TO INVESTORS BY STATE

Commissioners of Corporations Edwin M. Daugherty Asks People to Investigate

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 12.—Warning has been issued to investors by Commissioner of Corporations Edwin M. Daugherty to be exceedingly wary of placing their money during the coming reinvestment period.

It is pointed out by the commissioner that large sums are being paid by the United States government in redeeming certain bonds and war savings stamps; that the principal of several large bond issues is coming due, and that the usual amount of mortgage money and stock dividends are being offered between now and the first of the year.

Investors should first consult with reliable financiers or professional men before trusting their money in the hands of salesmen.

Investors should satisfy themselves of the character of the securities before investing, and one way to do this is to get information from some one who knows.

Beware of the suave talker, who makes extravagant promises. Remember that a company is not bound by statements not contained in its printed contract, or other literature, relating to the sales of its securities.

Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Robinson and son, Richard, of 226 West Elk avenue spent Sunday at Brea.

RUMOR PERSISTS SHE WILL MARRY PRINCE

Rumor persists in British court circles that the Prince of Wales is soon to announce his engagement to Lady Mary Cambridge, crowning English beuaty, in whose company he is seen constantly. She is the daughter of the Marquis of Cambridge, a brother of Queen Mary. The photograph of the Prince is his latest, taken when he acknowledged the cheers of the boys when he opened the William Baker Technical school at Goldings, Hertford, England.

Methodists—Manster, Olmstead, forwards; Cunningham, center; Dick, Keller and Holman, guards.

Baptists—Arnold, Shockley, Ford and Bentley, forwards; Jenusen, center; Van Wormer and Walker, guards.

PRESS WANT ADS BRING YOU THE RESULTS—

The Once Over

ADVERTISING IN THE SKIES

By H. I. PHILLIPS

Skies of pole or deepest blues—
How you grip and hold my soul!
Bidding me "WEAR GUGGEM'S SHOES!"—
Urging "TRY BLANK'S WHOLE WHEAT ROLL."

Marvelous and even more
Seems each stretch of fairest sky.
Giving me the football score
And the smokes "that satisfy."

Would that I could soar to thee
With the advertising fliers,
And abide with soups and tea,
Pickles, shirts, and jams and tires.

* * *

Using the skies for advertising purposes has now not only passed the experimental stage, but become a business. England has been doing it for over a year. Successful tests have been made in this country and companies organized to sell you advertising space in the heavens if you have the price. Slogan for national advertisers for 1923: The sky's the limit!

* * *

Airplanes do the trick. They release a chemical substance as they fly and spell out the desired advertisement or message. Each plane becomes a flying fountain pen, as it were.

* * *

The chief requirement of an aviator thus becomes that he know how to spell correctly and write a good, clear hand. An airman fell and was badly injured during experiments the other day. His loss was greatly regretted, as he was one of the best spellers in the aviation service.

* * *

The day is at hand when aviators may be decorated for extraordinary valor in putting over the advertising campaign for a new brand of pickles, beauty cream, or salad oil.

* * *

In fact, all our best advertising writers are rushing into the aviation business. By the first of the new year the skies should be full of cigarette, jam, ointment, pill, condensed milk, corset, garter, sock, hairnet, and soup advertisement writers fighting for the best spaces.

* * *

The day when lovers of nature, persons of poetic instincts, could get inspiration by gazing at the beauty of the skies would seem to be about over. In a short time the heavens will be full of nothing more inspiring than underwear and dandruff signs.

* * *

It is even conceivable that Aunt Jane, looking up at the skies to get a line on the weather outlook, may find them entirely concealed behind a large aerial illustration of ROZENTEIN'S NON-DESTRUCTIBLE SHIRT.

* * *

Possible Weather Report

Washington — A large area of prepared codfish, seamless sock, and pork product advertising is heavy over the central states and is moving slowly toward the Atlantic seaboard, producing unprecedented cloudiness. From the south a welldefined area of canned soup, lump sugar, pancake flour, and corset propaganda is moving with great velocity up the coast. The western and middle western states are still without sun, this being due to an unprecedentedly heavy formation of meat-loaf, deafness-positively-cured, cathartic pill, and ladies' silk lisle hose advertising over these sections.

Indications favor increasing cloudiness for the entire country until the aviators run out of ink or the advertising writers run out of ideas.

WE IMPORT PORK

"The state of Washington and adjacent states do not produce sufficient pork to supply the demands within this territory," says Prof. H. Hackedorn and Jerry Sotola, in their new bulletin (No. 169) on "Hog Feeding Experiments," just off the press of the state college of Washington agricultural experiment station. It may be had by request of the director.

"All of the larger butchers and packers testify that pork has to be shipped in to meet the fresh-meat demand," they continue. "Evidence of this condition is reflected by the fact that the price of hogs on foot at the union stockyards, Spokane, during the last two years ranged from 1c to 3c above the price for similar grades at the union stockyards, Chicago. It is apparent that the market for hogs in this territory is good."

COMEDY, "HELLO MARS" PATHE REVIEW

—here's how to sell used cars

Mr. G. was a dealer in automobiles and occasionally had a few second hand cars which he disposed of through the Glendale Daily Press Want Ad Section. He ran the following Want Ad in several issues:

OLDS.—1920 Tour., 5-pass., all overhauled; has original paint; dandy set of tires, cords, one extra; other extras; will sell cheap.
XXX DISTRIBUTORS
000 Brand Blvd. Glen. 0000

This Want Ad produced only a few indifferent inquiries, and Mr. G. was advised by a Daily Press representative to revise his Want Ad according to the slogan, "The more you tell, the quicker you sell." The Want Ad, rewritten, ran as follows:

Oldsmobile, 1920, Touring
5-pass., 6-cylinder. Run about 12,000 miles. Has original paint; just overhauled. Wonderful set of oversize cord tires; one extra tire and cover. Wheel lock, front bumper. You will have to act at once in order to get this bargain. Just think, only $675.
XXX DISTRIBUTORS
000 Brand Blvd.
Open Sundays and evenings

The rewritten Want Ad not only sold the car but produced valuable prospects for other cars. Remember the experience of Mr. G. when you have to write a Want Ad.

Truths in Epigram

Excellence, in any department, can now be attained only by the labor of a lifetime. It is not purchased at a lesser price.—Johnson.

Commend a fool for his wit and a knave for his honesty, and they will receive you into their bosoms.—Fielding.

An emperor in his night-cap will not meet with half the respect of an emperor with a crown.—

"THE UNDERWORLD"

Many references are made to "the underworld." They appear in the account of current events. They seem to be indispensable to the writer of fiction, particularly if he elects to write a story touching upon crime and its detection. But the underworld seems to be more than a figment of the reporter and author. At times it assumes the dignity of actual organization, a type of invisible government.

When an unlawful act indicative of desperate depravity is committed by man or woman, at once there is abundant aid from some source to promote the efforts of the prisoner to defeat justice. There are lawyers ready to defend, and by every trick and device thwart the law. Bondsmen are procurable readily, provided the crime is bailable. If conviction follows despite all the roguery, then the proffered help takes the form of making escapes possible. Tools are smuggled into the prison, ropes, weapons, disguises. On the outside there will be waiting a swift conveyance with its itinerary all arranged. Nothing is overlooked. Does this not argue the existence of a real compact among habitual evil-doers?

It is customary to speak of society as embracing individuals of every sort; collective humanity moving along recognized planes of activity. But there are two societies. One is hidden below the surface. It courts the shadows. Its proceedings are secret, its oaths unknown, its power shown only when one of members becomes subject to the penalties named by the other society. Then it shows signs of cunning, of determination, of ruthlessness and affluence.

Between the two living strata are connecting links. These individuals maintain a place openly in general society, but they share the secrets of the underworld, help it in its operation, and lend potency to its criminal lusts.

CALIFORNIA ALL ONE

Editor Harry Hammond of the Byron Times waxes just a trifle mournful over a two-page display in behalf of California's attractions, appearing in the Saturday Evening Post. His conception of it is that the south end of the state receives too much attention relatively. This is due to his own super-devotion to the north. Probably no other observer has taken a similar view. The generally accepted theory is that California is a state with two ends and a middle, and that it is a unit. One part does not thrive at the expense of the other, but they go forward together.

There is a vast difference between the north and the south climatically, and as to natural products, and the style of scenery, but in these respects they are not rivals, but adjuncts, each of the other. The north receives more rain than the south. Its weather is more rigorous, but many prefer it to the softer seasonal conditions. There was rivalry, or envy once, that now belongs to the past. San Francisco was the social and commercial center of the coast before Los Angeles had emerged from the pueblo stage. At that time San Francisco, in good faith, smiled, or possibly sneered, at the idea that Los Angeles ever was to grow to anything suggestive of the proportions that have been reached.

Today the business men of the two cities have many interests in common. Capital from each finds investment in the other. The development of a harbor in the south detracts nothing from the harbor above which San Francisco has twice grown to be a great city, once building on its ashes with courage and energy hardly to be paralleled.

People who come from the east come to California. There is room in the north and room in the south, abundant welcome in both places, and abundant opportunity. The distribution of incomers is a matter that will adjust itself, and that gives no ground for the faintest twinge of jealousy.

SPLENDID EDUCATIONAL WORK

There is a man in Los Angeles who is deaf, dumb and blind. Thirty years old, these have been his handicaps from birth. Yet he is making his own living, and, making it, experiences a happiness that had been no part of his darkness and silence. A year ago he was almost incapable of doing anything for himself. His changed condition is due to training in the state's department of rehabilitation. Mrs. Florence Vance was his special instructor. She must possess in wonderful degree the faculties that enabled the instructor of Helen Keller to stimulate a dormant mind, and awaken senses of which there had been small indication.

This is an example of splendid beneficent work. The individual born lacking in endowments that are deemed essential to the ordinary activities, has rights as inalienable as those of the more fortunate. In the first place, such an individual has the right to life. This much being conceded by the sentiment and practice of humanity, there rests upon society the moral obligation to make that life tolerable to the person held within its limitations, and make it useful to society. No system of education could be considered complete that did not extend aid to those most sadly and bitterly in need of it.

THE PAROLE SYSTEM

A bandit killed by the Oakland police, after he had robbed a bank, was found to have been a paroled prisoner from Folsom. He was sentenced for holding up a man in 1917. He had been convicted and sent to the penitentiary for nine years. He was released in September, 1921.

Of four men now in San Quentin for the murder of two policemen, two at least, were out on parole at the time the crime was committed. The original crime of one of them had been that of murder, and at one time he had faced the prospect of execution. The penalty was commuted to life, and in a comparatively short time he was turned loose.

Cases of this sort are not rare. When a man is arrested for a serious offense, the first step in investigating him is to look up his prison record. In a surprising number of instances he proves to be a paroled convict, at liberty because of his supposed reform and "on his honor."

The public knows too well that court processes often protect the guilty, and that juries are likely to err on the side of maudlin sympathy. Knowing this, the public naturally thinks that when one accused has been convicted, the chances that he is innocent are slight indeed. Yet an accomplished and hardened rogue goes to the penitentiary aware that he is not likely to serve out the stipulated time. The pretense of penitence, carried out cunningly, will set him free. It has so operated many times.

To hold that a man once convicted should be cut off from future opportunity would be monstrous. Yet it seems an anomoly that the man thus convicted, so often is able to escape the penalty in part, and resume preying upon society, that has paid to be protected from him.

A group of ruffians break into a church, destroy the vestments and vessels, and then set fire to the structure. While on the premises they consume large quantities of sacramental wine. Seldom is a crime more scurvy and wanton recorded. One wonders what motive could have stirred the vandals.

THE COMMON LOT

By DR. FRANK CRANE

One of the most grimly tragic stories among the recent news is that of Mrs. Gallo. It is thus told in the daily press:

Dr. Frank Crane

"Eighteen years ago Mr. and Mrs. Gallo made the journey from mid-Europe to mid-America without serious accident. Last Monday they essayed the trip from the Pennsylvania station to the Cunard office in quest of tickets for the return voyage to Czecho-Slovakia. By accident the door of a subway train closed between them. Neither knew much English; both were frightened; each searched futilely and franctically through unknown streets for the other. Mrs. Gallo collapsed under the strain of fear and anxiety, was taken to Bellevue hospital on Monday afternoon, and died there on Tuesday morning, still frightened and alone, a little before the sailing of the ship on which they had planned to take passage. Mr. Gallo found her, dressed in her holiday costume, in the city morgue."

No one can read this without feeling the shadow of fate. The poor woman stepped aside from her path in the jungle and the wolves devoured her.

Yet it may not be without benefit if we reflect that hers is the common lot.

Circumstances may differ, but to every one of us, at a certain time written in the Book of Fate, the door will be shut. To one it may an accident, such as a fall or stumbling. To another it may be pneumonia or cancer, or a fever, or even senility. But to every one of us, in some form, it is bound to come.

Every intelligent person, while he should not dwell upon death, ought to at least take it into consideration, for it is one of the few things that is absolutely certain.

The very earth on which we live is hung upon nothing and sails through empty space like a bubble in the wind.

The earthquake or the tidal wave—against these there is no insurance.

Victor Hugo said in his shattering way: "Nous sommes tous condamnes"—we are all condemned criminals. Each of us is waiting his turn to go into the death house.

Sanely considered, this does not prove the case of pessimism nor make the high gods malicious. For those qualities that brighten life, such as love, and faith and hope, are not given merely to mock us. They are the shine of spirits passing this way. They are harbingers of a greater destiny. They are invisible proofs that we spirits are greater than and above all things and all events.

Our morality and our belief in goodness are not drawn from the order of nature. They are a protest against it, and the expression of our innate conviction that we are captive kings, not bounden slaves. So we fare forth when our time shall come.

Still nursing the unconquerable hope,
Still clutching the inviolable shade.

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

THE RIGHT WORD SCHOOL

Day before yesterday "The Right Word" discussed some outstanding points in the style of "Love," a novel by Leonie Aminoff. The article began with a sentence descriptive of the story. Tomorrow will appear a similar article on "Millions," a novel by Ernest Poole. This is one feature of the course, in which "The Right Word" will do the work for you.

These reviews, appearing occasionally, will point out for your benefit the characteristics of style among modern writers.

Readers of "The Right Word" are frequently seeking to find out whether there is any clearly defined rule on the use of the relatives, who, which and that. Such a rule may be found in modern grammars. But in literature the application of the rule does not seem clear. These reviews of modern writings will therefore prove interesting and enlightening. Again, for example, to what extent do modern writers use the possessive before the gerund; as, I spoke of John's being there; He referred to the horse's running away; Mary knew of the book's being on the shelf? These and other problems will be studied.

Books also offer innumerable examples of correct English in the author's own words. Very occasionally almost every author slips and pens a locution that is incorrect in the estimation of modern grammar and universal usage. If such an error is pointed out it is done for the good of the cause. "The Right Word" does not intend to be over-critical, nor to forget that the author may often be able to claim immunity from criticism on the grounds of usage. Therefore usage will be consulted constantly.

Again, the colloquial English and slang and incorrect English an author puts into the dialogues of his characters offer excellent opportunities. With these phrases and sentences "The Right Word" will be able to point out to its readers such expressions as should be avoided in speech and writing.

Your first lesson is to read the review on "Millions" tomorrow. The following day the next step in the course will be presented.

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

Most of the money we use is merely a promise to pay.

Gold and silver have an agreed intrinsic value.

But there is little if any gold in circulation.

And silver is pretty heavy to carry about in large sums.

If a man owed you a thousand dollars and started to stack up a thousand silver dollars you would stop him and say:

"give me a check."

* * *

A check is merely a bit of paper.

A request upon somebody for payment.

It has no intrinsic value whatever.

For being written over with ink the paper is spoiled for any other purpose.

But——

There is something behind the promise to pay or the demand for payment.

You know you can get the money for it if you want it.

* * *

So you put it through the window of the bank with your name on the back of it and get credit for it.

And you never inquire after it again.

You draw other checks against it.

For the check was good.

So your checks are good.

* * *

And the bills you have in your pocket are merely checks drawn by the nation.

By the treasurer of the United States.

Or by the secretary of the treasury.

And you do not ask for gold or silver for them.

Because they are accepted in payment of your bills at their face value.

* * *

That is the advantage of having a good national credit.

A system of exchange that runs a hundred cents to the dollar.

You do not have to step into a bank and ask what your money is worth.

How many dollars worth of money you have to give for a dollar's worth of goods.

* * *

Your money is good because the faith and credit of the government are behind it.

If the government has no faith and credit then there is nothing behind it.

Merely a speculative value.

If you issue a hundred thousand dollars worth of promissory notes with nothing behind them, all they are worth is speculative.

Will you ever be able to pay them?

And will you be disposed to pay them?

* * *

Germany is having now the experience of lack of faith and credit.

Money is being printed by bales.

Marks by the billions.

Nobody believes the government will ever take up the marks at their face value.

So the value is purely speculative.

And it takes thousands of marks to make a dollar's worth of value.

When it used to take only five.

* * *

If any argument were needed against the debasing of national currency we have it in the fall of the German mark.

Nothing behind the paper promise.

No intrinsic value pledged.

A purely speculative value.

And a people eagerly seeking to exchange bales of marks for anything having a tangible value.

* * *

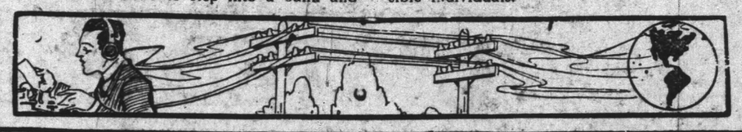
National credit is a good deal like individual credit.

The irresponsible has no credit.

Because he cannot pay and would not if he could.

And nations become sometimes irresponsibles.

And they usually go the way of irresponsible individuals.



Songs of the Poets

My Recollectest Thoughts—By Charles Edward Carryl (1841—)

My recollectest thought are those
Which I remember yet;
And bearing on, as you'd suppose,
The things I don't forget.

But my resemblest thoughts are less
Alike that they should be;
A state of things, as you'll confess,
You very seldom see.

And yet the mostest thought I love
Is what no one believes—
That I'm the sole survivor of
The famous Forty Thieves!

MAKE THE PUNISHMENT FIT THE CRIME

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

The legislators of the various states are shortly to be called on to pass a uniform law dealing with the problem of illegitimacy.

The movement for partial justice—for that is all that the proposed law offers the unfortunate child born out of wedlock — is fostered by the Children's Bureau of the Department of Labor; and it's going to shock a lot of the "righteous" out of their sanctimonious shoes.

Yet the law, if it becomes a law, is but a mild measure providing for the support of illegitimate children and taking no cognizance of inheritance rights.

"Support," as Miss Grace Abbott, head of the Children's Bureau, points out, may now mean anything or nothing according to the wills and sympathies of bone-headed state legislators (the qualifying adjective is mine).

In Tennessee, for example, the father of an illegitimate child MAY be required to pay not to exceed $40 for the child's maintenance the first year, $30 the second year and $20 the third year. Of course, all and sundry know that it costs less (?) to maintain a three-year-old child than one a year or two years old. Tennessee, it may be observed, is careful of her infant charge; and in order that the mothers of illegitimate children may not spend these awards in riotous living and so be encouraged to produce more nameless waifs the awards are made to the Commissioner of the Poor and not to the mothers of the babies. Thus is the cause of morality, via the infant starvation route, encouraged by our state legislators.

And now arises the Children's Bureau to "encourage vice" by demanding that the father of an illegitimate child shall be required to foot the bills.

Which makes the "moral" element quake in its shoes, the "moral" element having a theory that vice is curbed by starvation of its victims.

But is it? I think not. I am of the primitive opinion that the way to curb vice is to make the philanderer pay the bills. What think you?

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

JUST ONE MINUTE!

[Sioux Falls Press]

You can read this in one minute.

By the time you reach the last line, property worth $932 will have been destroyed by fire somewhere in the United States.

Minute after minute, day after day, on the average, this appalling pace keeps up, to a grand yearly total of $485,000,000.

That, at least, was the record in 1921. What the showing will be this year, and in the years to come, depends, in large measure, on you.

Ninety per cent of all fires are preventable, for they are due to carelessness.

Take a look in your cellar, your attic, that closet. Clear out the rubbish—the old stuff stored away because "maybe some day we'll have use for it." Many fires about the house are born in trash piles.

While fire insurance may mark the difference between protection and destitution, every American home has its treasured possessions whose worth cannot be computed in terms of money and can never be replaced.

A minute's thought now may have the patient accumulation of a lifetime from the ravages of fire.

After all, it's chiefly a matter of protecting your own dwelling and those whose presence there make it home.

Isn't it worth a minute to you?

[New York Herald]

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

An editor up north, who used to be fond of a cocktail, and since asserts his moral right to enjoy the same, has been giving a little advice to his fellow wets. The essence of it is that no matter how loudly they shout, or even if they elect the President in 1924, as they fondly dream, they can't have their liquor. They must depend upon the bootlegger, whose stuff is not commended by the connoisseur.

HENRY JAMES

Throwing cold water—the last thing they desire—on their efforts, the editor calls attention to the inability of the President to change the constitution.

Adding to the burden of their griefs, he mentions that there are thirteen states so dry that to convert them would be impossible. They would have to be converted in order to pry an amendment from its snug position in the constitution.

Perhaps his unkindest slam at the budding hopes of his friends is when he hazzards the guess that not a majority of states, to say nothing of two-thirds, would vote to bring back old conditions. "Wet fanatics" he calls the agitators for repeal, despite the fact that he is as wet, figuratively as any of them. He declines to be a fanatic.

Thus mournfully he closes: "It's gone, boys; except as doctors prescribe it."

And as slangy persons sometimes ejaculate, "Ain't it the truth?"

* * *

The governor of Mississippi is defendant in a suit by a girl once his stenographer. She desires damages in the sum of $100,000, more than is conveniently to be lifted out of a gubernatorial pay envelope.

Of the merits of the case nothing is known at this distance, but some idea of local opinion may be garnered from the fact that students of the University of Mississippi recently burned the governor in effigy.

* * *

Litigation that will strike most people as peculiar is under consideration in the court of Judge Hahn. It is based on the effort to procure a permanent injunction against the burial of a body in a cemetery.

Objection to the interment arises from the circumstanec that the body is not that of a Caucasian.

There is a familiar quotation from Kipling, never designed to befit the present occasion, but doing so nevertheless:

"The colonel's lady and Julia O'Grady
Are just the same under the skin."

This holding good in life, ought to do so even more markedly in death. White, black or yellow go back to common dust, without much loss of time; after that, there is no distinction.

* * *

They have a realtor in jail on the ground that he deprived an aged woman of her fortune of $75,000. He is accused of having given her as fact, stuff too flimsy even for the making of a pipe dream.

Suspicions occasionally arise that things of this kind are going on. Jail is an excellent place for the energetic realtor who causes them to go.

* * *

Since the speeding of automobiles in Los Angeles has been so rigorously checked, a staid old trolley car, probably to show its independence, took a wild run along Broadway. A lot of people were badly scared and some were hurt.

Probably the laws against speeding will not apply as to the motorman, while there is no provision for confiscating a ruffianly trolley car.

* * *

The claim is made that science has added fourteen years to human life. Probably this is true. While exact figures might be difficult to verify, there is plenty of evidence to sustain the claim. If any mature individual will search his memory, he will have to admit that centenarians, and persons approaching close to that stage, are more frequent than in his youth. There are many diseases once held to be incurable, and regarded as visitations of providence, that have been checked or eliminated.

The writer as a young man played in a ball game for the benefit of yellow fever sufferers in Florida. He recalls well when cholera advanced up the Mississippi until it claimed a number of victims in the river towns of Iowa. Neither of these plagues, even finding lodgment on either coast, could start the semblance of a panic now. Then the dread consumption, that used to be regarded as fatal; they cure it now.

They have found how to protect babes, how to keep food and drink pure, to keep the body clean, how to get the benefit of fresh air. Of course people live longer, and doubtless find it more worth while.

WATCHING THE PARADE

BY JOHN PILGRIM

Nobody is ever to be exposed to the trouble of sitting around waiting for my death, in the hope that I will leave some money. On the level, if I get just a little bit more pessimistic, I'll buy an annuity for Mrs. Pilgrim, and another one for me, and the expectant heirs can go hang. I'll not go through what my Uncle Ed is going through now.

The best old bird in the world, Ed is. Nothing too good for him. All his life he has been generous and self-sacrificing and hard-working. Partly by hard work and partly by good luck he managed to scrape together a pretty fair-sized fortune and then he set out to enjoy life. He swore that he would never do another tap.

"The only reason why I've worked was to give the kids a good start, anyhow," he said. "Now they have that and I'm content."

Those kids are good boys and girls, too. I mean it. There are times when I get up on my ear and rear and tear and call them names, but in my heart I know better. They are good boys and girls—men and women, now. But they are just like all the rest of us. We're human, consarn it. We have humanity's imperfections. Most of us always will have them.

When poor old Ed wants to spend a little money they disapprove. They take a firm but kindly stand with their dad. They give him to understand clearly that he is merely the trustee of their money, and that they look to him not to lose a nickel of it. Each has a plan all made for the investment of his share. They would approve of Ed making a little more, of course, but the making must be attended by absolute safety.

"It ought not to cost Dad more than so-and-so-much to live," one of them said in my presence.

"He could save so many thousand dollars a year if he would." The rest all agreed. They shook their heads over their dad's tendency to spend money unwisely, just to get himself a voyage or a car or a new gun or a dog that he foolishly thought he wanted. All that was spending their money. And when Ed is sick they watch him.

I do not want any one to watch me the way they watch Ed. There is a look of calculation in their eyes. Sometimes one can almost see their lips move:

"Forty thousand—maybe forty-five thousand each—and when the house is sold——"

Ed knows that they watch him, too. The old man is dying of it. That's the truth. He is being watched into his grave.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—?

Noiseless rubber composition paving blocks estimated to wear fifteen years and made at a price to compete with ordinary creosoted wooden blocks have been invented in England.

Taxicabs in Havana use gasoline in preference to the much cheaper alcohol, because congested traffic conditions require quick starting ability.

SECOND FLOOR PLAN COTTONWOOD FIRST FLOOR PLAN COTTONWOOD

Three Rooms on Each Floor

Here is a two-family dwelling which presents attractive features.

The living room on each floor is unusually large, and if a folding bed is desired, the living room may also serve as a sleeping room.

The fine large porches will attract instant favor. A large room toward the rear of the house is so arranged that it may well serve as a kitchen and dining room.

This house will be ideal for two small families and it is recommended for your careful consideration.

The above plans are furnished by the National Builders' Bureau of Spokane, Washington, of which the Bentley-Schoeneman Lumber Co., 460 West Los Feliz Road, are the exclusive agents. The details and prices for the construction of any building which may appear on this page can be obtained from the Bentley-Schoeneman Lumber Company, free of charge, by anyone desiring the same.

We will finance your building. All work guaranteed. We are building homes of quality right now. You should see them.

KIDDIES ASK SOCIETY FOR PARENTS

Eighteen little boys and girls as well as a dozen babes in arms in Los Angeles and Oakland are looking forward to a most unusual Christmas present this year—all of them want mothers and daddies. Those who can talk say they will not be satisfied with anything less.

For the past month these abandoned children now in the care of the California Children's Home Society have been asking:

"Will we have a real daddy and mother by Christmas time and will they give us nice toys and candy and everything?"

The Children's Home Society has passed the question on to the people in its state-wide search for homes for these little ones by Christmas. The answer, it is believed, will come from people in this and other communities who long have felt the desire to love and protect a child that they call their own.

The society now offers a choice collection of lively boys and girls and cooing babes to couples who need the presence of a child in their homes to make Christmas mean what it should. These children have been abandoned by their parents or made orphans by the death of a father or mother. They may be secured, it is stated, by application to either the Los Angeles branch, 919 East 25th street, or the Oakland branch, 3491 66th Avenue.

Generous hearted people of the state are providing many good things for Christmas for these children, but the great festival of the year will mean little to them unless it brings them the big gift their little hearts are longing for—a mother and daddy. Even the tiniest of them, little Helen, only three years old, is looking forward to Santa Claus' visit, for she thinks the good old saint is going to bring her a "muvver" and a daddy.

Will California disappoint little Helen and the other longing hearts? The society thinks not and just to prove that it is right, is making a state-wide appeal to childless couples in the belief that its search for homes will be rewarded and its little children placed in the care of men and women who will safeguard and love them through the coming years.

MORE ABOUT FOREST WORK

By CHARLES H. SHINN
Forest Examiner

Since more than a dozen young persons who read a recent note on "Forest Laboratory Courses" have felt enough interest to write us letters we hasten to add some "pointers."

The "Forest products laboratory" is for practical study, and research. It is a department of the forest service and is at the University of Wisconsin, Madison, Wis Its purpose is to develop "the most economical methods of converting standing trees into finished products." Profit utilization, efficiency, better education of hand and brain are its watchwords. Its advice and suggestions are to be had for the asking, and an illustrated government pamphlet of 47 pages can be had for nothing by writing to the director.

The time is not coming, but is already here, when young foremen, managers and owners in lumber mills and wood working industries find study at such a place as this the best possible investment of their time and money.

It is hard to condense in simple language the lines of work at such a place. Pulp and paper is one which interests every publisher on earth; wood-preservation from fire or decay is another and one which helps all of us. Still another line is in distillations and derived products from wood. Some of these last seem to carry us into the fairy-land of science. What, for instance, will stockmen say to the actual production of a valuable food for cattle from sawdust? Preliminary experiments in this field, the laboratory reports, "have been highly encouraging." Then, wood-meal" has been substituted for one-fourth of the ordinary grain ration of cattle * * * with increase in their weight and no decrease in yield of milk."

As a reward for being a good boy, Mrs. Levinski took little Sammie to the new music hall which had recently become a brilliant addition to the small-town.

As the soprano began to sing Sammie became greatly excited over the gesticulations of the orchestra conductor.

"What's that man shakin' his stick at her for?" he demanded, indignantly.

"Sh-h! He's not shaking his stick at her."

But Sammie was not convinced. "Then what's she yellin' about?"

Pretty Girl Simply had to Catch Ship and Succeeded with Tug

Congratulated by Captain.

New York An exemplification of American ingenuity and desire to give service was the recent catching of a steamer by Miss Ruth Williamson. Miss Williamson was desirous of getting to London because of the illness of her mother, and had booked passage on the S. S. America, of the United States Lines. When Miss Williamson arrived at the pier with her baggage, she found to her dismay, that the vessel was well on its way to the open sea.

Miss Williamson had been visiting in Chicago when she received a cable calling her to her mother's bed-side. She immediately telegraphed for accommodations aboard the America, and boarded a train for New York. The train arrived late, and the young woman with her luggage rushed to the pier in a taxicab. Upon her arrival she found that the America had passed the Statue of Liberty, and was headed for the broad Atlantic.

Realizing the strained predicament of the young woman, officials of the United States Lines called into service a speedy tug-boat. The young woman was quickly escorted aboard the tug, and the rush after the liner began. The shrill whistling of the tug-boat attracted the attention of the officers aboard the fast-travelling America, and the word was taken to Captain William Rind, Commander aboard the bridge of the ship, who immediately ordered the engine room to slacken speed, and in a few minutes the tug-boat had arrived alongside the great ocean liner.

A rope ladder was lowered from one of the lower decks of the America, and the plucky Miss Williamson, without further aid, proceeded to clamber upward to the deck, where she was greeted by the purser. Her baggage was raised up on the end of a rope. During the operation, a large crowd of passengers on the America climbed the rails, and cheered the brave girl's act. Captain Rind was so impressed with the young lady's courage that he sent for her from the bridge, and personally paid his compliments.

Big steamships depart on schedule time, and with all the promptness of a railroad train. It is disconcerting to the officials when travelers arrive late, but through various circumstances, this sometimes happens. The passenger's only hope then, is to be taken aboard a tug in pursuit of the steamer. The majority of women hesitate about undertaking such a venture, but Miss Williamson gave ample testimony that she, as a member of the so-called weaker sex, was capable of the bravery of the stronger.

During Miss Williamson's boarding of the vessel, and after she was received by Captain Rind on the bridge of the vessel, scores of amateur photographers took snapshots of the young lady. Among the photographs sent back to shore aboard the tug was one showing the young lady being congratulated by the commander of the big liner.

PURPOSE OF THE COMMUNITY SERVICE

The purpose of Community Service is to liberate the power of expression of people and communities. What we are trying to do is to help the men, women and children of America to find their voice—to set forth in drama, art and music and in the hundred other forms of play what it was they have all along been trying to say which could not get itself expressed within the confines of their daily work.

It is essential to any success in carrying out this purpose that we should subordinate ourselves and our organization and make our aid as soon as possible unnecessary. We should not be drawn aside by the desire to make a showing or to get things done. It is not the size of the thing that happens but its expressiveness that counts. If it does not come from the hearts of the people, it is of no use to them. It is to bring out, not to put in or put over, that we exist.

Of course we shall not be understood—at least not at first. Community Service has everywhere been a plant of slow growth. The reason is that it is a plant, not a staging, and that growth itself is slow. It is true there will often be a piece of work—community singing, the opening of a playground, the starting of a club—for which there is a present hunger, and the sooner such things are given form, the better. We must not seek slowness any more than speed, but simply help the people's own expression to develop at its natural pace.

The resources are there, ready to our hand. Veins of pure gold—musical and artistic taste, the love of beauty, neighborliness and the thirst for better citizenship—lie very near the surface. We need only to lay bare to the people their own abundant resources and our small part is done.

President National Community Service, Inc.

Pierce Butler, Chosen for Supreme Court by Harding; a Democrat

Mr. Butler of St. Paul, Minn., named by the President as associate justice of the United States Supreme Court to take the place made vacant by the resignation of Justice Day, has been a practising attorney in Minnesota since 1888. He has been counsel for the government in a number of important cases. He gained national prominence in 1910 when he represented the government in the famous bleached flour cases. About two years ago Mr. Butler was retained by the government of Canada in proceedings to determine the price the Grand Trunk Railroad Company should be paid for its properties when they were taken over by the government. Mr. Butler, who is fifty-six years old, is a native of Minnesota.

EYE SIGHT WEEK OF CONSERVATION IS PROPOSED

Aided by representation from President Harding's cabinet, federal and state officials, university professors, engineers, industrialists and civic leaders, the Eyesight Conservation Council of America, with national headquarters at Forty-second street and Broadway, New York city, has set in motion a movement for the observance throughout the country of Eyesight Conservation day in the schools.

Every school in California will be asked to join in establishing the new semi-annual custom of Eyesight Conservation day, planned as a universal and permanent contribution to the American system of education. To execute this plan, Will C. Wood of Sacramento, superintendent of public instruction, and county superintendents throughout the state, will cooperate in the Eyesight Conservation day movement, including Mark Keppel of Los Angeles, Los Angeles county. Local superintendents will also aid in the movement, including Mrs. Susan M. Dorsey of Los Angeles, John F. West of Pasadena, George C. Bush of South Pasadena, W. L. Stephens of Long Beach, R. D. White of Glendale, Leonard F. Collins of Burbank, G. W. Crozier of Inglewood, and Lewis F. Ferrish of Venice, Los Angeles county.

LITTLE TALKS ON THRIFT

By S. W. STRAUS, President American Society for Thrift.

THE foremost problem before the world today concerns methods of effecting world stabilization. It is a fundamental truth that billions of dollars in capital cannot be wiped out and millions of lives sacrificed without incurring a debt that all humanity must share. And since all humanity must share in this burden, as events since the end of the war have proved, it follows quite naturally that all humanity must share in the restitution of these destroyed values.

S. W. STRAUS

What is needed is greater practices of thrift throughout the world, and, no plan will be successful that is not based on these practices by the people. What is needed, therefore, more than anything else is a world-wide revival of the thrift spirit. In our personal lives there are no short-cuts by which we can build ourselves up, excepting through the orderly processes of working and saving. And exactly the same rule holds good with nations.

Not enough is being said about thrift throughout the world. Not enough of it is taught in the schoolroom. Not enough is preached from the pulpits and through the press.

More intensive practices of thrift would form a background that would prove of incalculable value in bringing to a successful culmination any plans for world-wide stabilization that may be worked out.

If each individual who reads these lines will take these thoughts home to himself and do what he can to lend impetus to thrift, a splendid start will have been made toward the restoration of world-wide prosperity and good-will.

BRITISH LINE UP BATTLE OF BOOZE FOR NEW YEAR

Churches Out for Dryer England and Wets Want Moisture

LONDON, Dec. 12.—England will be in the throes of the greatest booze fight in her existence by the New Year, if the Church has her will.

The Church is out for a far dryer England.

The wets are determined to have a wet England.

New Year will see the battle open, when fourteen denominations of the Church, including Roman Catholics, Anglicans, Presbyterians, Methodists and Free Churchers, backed by 36 Anglican bishops, start out to convert the country, with a smashing anti-drink propaganda which will hit rich and poor alike.

The booze fighters, armed with the authority of mother church will urge:

No sale of liquor on Sundays. No sale to me under 18 years. No sale in aristocratic clubs without license. General restriction of drinking hours. Heavy reduction in the amount of wines, beers and spirits supplied to public houses.

The wets, armed with anti-dry propaganda will be backed up by at least 70 percent of the British population, it is believed.

Both sides will use the outdoor cinema as a means to their ends. The anti-boozers will show film depicting the sad lot of the drunkard, show him in all his gruesome loathsomeness, while he beats his wife and children.

The wets, it is reported, will stage a series of films showing the results of drinking bootlegged liquor, with picturesque effects on the part of blind-stricken victims.

Father Wrigley, prominent anti-wet clergyman told the United Press that the Roman Catholic church did not wish to deprive the British working man of his beer, but believed that the evils of too much drink should be modified by minor restrictions.

The Pussyfooters are jubilant at the chance of once more getting a real hearing. Their warcry at the opening stage will, it is believed, be one of restriction, but if the tide of battle swings in favor of the anti-alcoholic churchmen, then England may expect the massed guns of Pussyfootism in full drumfire in a fight to a finish for prohibition.

Whether funds from America will be brought in to aid the dry cause has not definitely been stated.

Meanwhile the wetes have stolen a march on the drys by placarding the inner parlors of the famous "pubs" of London and the provinces with notices warning those who enjoy their beer to turn out in force when the campaign starts.

General opinion is that the wets will come out victorious. Touch an Englishman's beer and you touch his pet corn. When that happens, he is liable to kick.

At the Theatres

"RAGS TO RICHES" HAS UNIVERSAL APPEAL

Why is it that the appeal of the theme of a boy's rise from rags to riches is eternal and unfading, having a powerful hold on young and old alike? And why is its message universal? The answer to these questions is given in "Rags to Riches," the Harry Rapf production sponsored by Warner Brothers, at the Glendale theatre.

Freckled, inimitable Wes will be remembered by all who saw him in "School Days." He typifies the unconquerable spirit of youth and its adventurous strain, which he always succeeds in communicating to his audience.

"Rags to Riches," adapted from Charles A. Taylor's celebrated stage play, centers about young Marmaduke Clarke, a wealthy little child, who frets under the artificial formality of his home, and pines for a little action. He gets his chance upon discovering a burglar in the house.

PARAMOUNT FILM, "KICK IN" AT THE T. D. & L.

"Kick In," the Paramount special featuring Betty Compson, Bert Lytell and May McAvoy, is the T., D. & L. attraction beginning today. "Kick In" is the liveliest of dramas by Willard Mack, the accomplished dramatist and is exceptionally fitting for the Compson-Lytell combination. It is certainly real entertainment—breezy, pulsating, with plenty of action and drama to satisfy the most critical. After a success in New York City of two solid years it comes to the screen even bigger and better as a startling and amazing drama. Don't miss it!

Starting next Sunday Ralph Allan announces "East is West," with Constance Talmadge, "is the best picture seen in Glendale in over a year."

The head of the department of physics in a certain western university was returning from his vacation. On the train he sat next a man whom he thought he knew. They drifted into conversatibn and finally the professor said, "You look very familiar. I wonder if I've ever met you before." The other man smiled and said, "I think you have. I'm a student in some of your courses and I live at your house."

PARENTAGE BLOOD TESTS

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE
Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.
(Copyright, 1922, by The Associated Newspapers.)

Recently a difficult situation developed in a Massachusetts town. Two women laid claim to the parentage of a small boy, thought by one to be her son, kidnaped in infancy, and alleged by the other to have been born to her and to the man arrested on a kidnaping charge.

Circumstances were such that at first it seemed impossible to determine the child's parentage by ordinary methods of proof. The suggestion was made that by a series of blood tests—by analysis of the boy's blood and its comparison with blood taken from the rival claimants—the problem as to who really was his mother might be conclusively solved.

Both women were willing to resort to this plan, and one of them actually journeyed to a Boston hospital for the purpose of having her blood examined. But the hospital authorities frowned on the project.

In fact, they flatly refused to assist in carrying it out. They said it would prove nothing. In especial, contrary to a belief now widely entertained by the lay public and having the endorsement of certain scientists, they insisted that, whatever the proposed test might disclose, it could not establish beyond peradventure the parentage of the boy in dispute.

By an odd coincidence, at the very time this question of the value of blood tests for parentage was thus raised in a concrete way, an editorial discussion of the same question appeared in the Journal of the American Medical Association. And the view therein expressed was similar to that held by the authorities of the Peter Bent Brigham hospital in Boston.

Yet it is not surprising that an opposite view has currency. In support of it may be adduced the findings of various experimenters, notably Reuben Ottenberg, indicating that human bloods differ from one another in typical ways, and that the type differences are transmissible by heredity from one generation to another.

It has not been shown, though, that the type differences are narrowly limited to famliies. Conceivably, mere coincidence might account for an identity in the blood grouping of a child and an alleged parent of that child. So that, at best, the testing by blood types would merely go to disprove relationships.

That is to say, assuming the validity of the test, if a child's blood did not match the type of the blood in one or the other of its alleged parents, it could reasonably be held that the child must have some other parents. Even this negative value of parentage blood tests is, however, called into question by the Journal of the American Medical Association.

For, quite properly, it insists that parents might be so conditioned that the blood of their offspring might show the type differences peculiar to neither parent, but distinctive of some remote ancestor alike of the child and of one of its parents. In such a contingency grave injustice would be done were the findings regarded as positive disproof of relationship.

All of which are considerations leading the Journal to an emphatic:

"The conclusion is that at present science knows no blood test by which parentage can be determined."

A conclusion I commend to the attention of any who for any reason contemplate making trial of a blood test with reference to the parentage of some child.

SPOILS SYSTEM COSTS MANY MILLIONS

Civil Service Reform League Head Tells of System in Operation

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—There are in the United States 3,000,000 civilian employes of the federal, state, county and municipal governments. Their annual salaries aggregate $3,000,000,000.

Of this amount one quarter, approximately $700,000,000, is wasted annually, due to the operation of the spoils system of appointment and promotion in the civil service.

These statements made by Richard H. Dana, Boston, president of the National Civil Service Reform league, in his speech before the forty-second annual convention of the league, prefaced an appeal to public officials everywhere to support the league's program for abolition of the spoils system and substitution of the merit system throughout the public service.

Will Hays, former postmaster general, was quoted by party liability. He emphasized the point that any flagrant use of patronage had always in the past lost votes for the party in power.

"Let me ask the administration," Dana said, "whether there is any other issue it could now take up which would so appeal to the public at large and so rebound to its own credit in the history of the country."

Two methods may be employed, Dana asserted, to eleminate the present wastage of tax funds in the civil service. The first is by turning efficiency and employment experts into the various departments of the public service to weed out supremerary and inefficient employes, to standardize work and modernize metehods, and to improve individual morals by putting promotion on a basis of merit instead of political pull. The second is by requiring officials in the higher grades, responsibile for the management of the lower grades, to be selected on account of fitness either through promotion based on merit, or through original appointment based on past education, training, experience and the achievements of the appointee.

"We as a country, have let matters drift too far," Dana said. "We are not only wasting our patrimony, but are becoming fixed. If we are too indifferent, if we are too absorbed in our private affairs, the time for reformation may be past, and the country become hardened to the spoils system as a necessary evil."

FOR OUR SCHOOL CHILDREN

What is the value of the hot school lunch?

Miss Mary E. Sutherland, nutrition specialist for the extension division of the state college of Washington says that it keeps the child in that state of physical well-being so necessary to mental alertness, for one thing. When children have a hot dish at noon their grades are better; they are more interested in the preparation of their food; they take enough time to eat their lunch, instead of gobbling it and rushing off to play; they learn to eat more wholesome things; and good table manners are encouraged.

The serving of the hot lunch by the pupils themselves develops in them the ability to make and execute plans, and also develops a sense of responsibility and initiative, tact, friendliness, and a spirit of co-operation and teamwork in the preparation of the lunch. The noon hour is given more order and sociability, too.

That is quite a long list, but it is subscribed to by the teachers and parents in the increasing number of school houses where the plan is being followed of serving at least one hot dish to the children at noon.

You don't have to associate with electricians to hear shocking language.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

JAMES W. FOLEY

THE IRRESPONSIBLE

I'm only just a little girl
And when I want to play,
My Mamma says don't go outside
The yard the livelong day.
And when some other girls, they come
And pester me to go,
It may be wrong, but I'm so young,
How does she 'spose I know?

And then when she goes out sometime
And says now go to bed
At eight o'clock this very night,
I 'member what she said.
But when the mantel clock strikes eight,
And I don't want to go,
It may be wrong, but I'm so young,
How does she 'spose I know?

And when she says now don't go near
The cookie jar all day;
I want some cookies awful much
And try to stay away,
But all the time I'm hungry for
Some cookies and I go,
It may be wrong but I'm so young,
How does she 'spose I know?

I'm only just a little girl,
Not more than six years old,
And my! I always try to do
Exactly as I'm told.
But when I make just one mistake,
My Ma ought not to go
And punish me for I'm so young,
How does she 'spose I know?

It takes a has-been a long time to find it out.

Whatever else you do with a worry, don't pass it on.

DON'T SHUT YOUR EYES WHEN YOU BUY STOCK

So Advises Commissioner of Coporations Edwin F. Daugherty

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 12.—Under the heading: "Hints to the Prospective Investor," Commissioner of Corporation Edwin M. Daugherty today has sent throughout the state a few suggestions which may prove of value at this particular time.

Here are some of them in brief:

Don't buy securities from an open purse with your eyes closed.

Remember that it is up to the salesman to show you that his goods are honest and clean.

Always demand to see the salesman's license, and make certain that it is in force.

Ask to see the company's stock permit, and read it carefully.

Don't take anything for granted in a deal involving the investment of your money—make certain that the thing you are buying is an honest one.

Don't expect to make a million on a shoestring.

Remember dollars, in most cases, can only work so hard and so long for you.

Beware of the offering for $100 that is going to provide a fortune for your old age.

Take as much care in buying securities as you do in buying a cow, horse, auto, plow or a house to live in.

When in doubt—do not buy—consult your banker, a financier or a professional man—and then, if you are still in doubt, don't buy.

It will soon be the open season for teaching the summer girl to swim all over again.

A man's sins will not find him out as soon as his wife.

BIG 'BUSTS' OF THE 1922 SPORT YEAR

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—While the closing year has produced many notable achievements in sports, it was more famous for its developments of first class "busts." Favorites had a terrible year and some of the best of all the upsets were reserved for a final smack during the football season.

It would be difficult to classify the biggest bust of the year, but Georges Carpentier was not the least of them and neither was Babe Ruth.

Perhaps Ruth was the outstanding failure of the year, because in his downfall there was not the element of chance and luck that was behind the first of Battling Siki when it swung against the jaw of the handsome Carpentier.

The Babe was a bust and a terrible one, through faults particularly and peculiarly his own.

The real prize bust of baseball, however, were the New York Yanks in the world series. Ruth with his own little reversal of form helped the American League champions to lose four straight games to the Giants and thereby provide a surprise from which many pocketbooks have not yet recovered.

* * * * * * *

Morvich, the champion two-year-old of 1921, was the big bust of the turf. The Block youngster won the Kentucky Derby and conducted himself in the early season as if the deeds of Man o' War were to be shoved back to second place in the books. He's in the stud now with the classic label of a canine.

The reversal of form in Morvich had a strange effect on the Block stable, which won twelve out of thirteen races of 1921 and lost twelve out of thirteen in 1922.

* * * * * * *

Yale's football team was the big explosion of a season of football that was one big upset. The startling failure of the Yale team to live up to expectations was one of the big outstanding developments of the season.

Form went far wide of the mark in the east, but Iowa, in winning a tie for the Western Conference championship, lived up to advance notices and with the exception of the game with Southern California, the University of California eleven scored as many points as it was expected.

* * * * * * *

On her home courts, Mrs. Molla Mallory was the tennis queen, but she was a prominent failure when she tried to defeat Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, the French girl, in the British championship.

Bill Tilden's big bust was a bust at the critics who predicted and bet that little Bill Johnson would take the championship from him.

* * * * * * *

As a whole, the British players were the fizzles of golf and Gene Sarazen was the sensation of the year. Walter Hagen upset a lot of good predictions when he won the British open championship and Sarazen surprised everyone when he won the American open title, the professional championship, and when he beat Hagen in a match for the unofficial world's championship.

* * * * * * *

Yale's surprises did not all consist in being defeated. The Yale varsity eight produced one of the big surprises of the early summer when it won a brilliant race from the Harvard crew.

The outstanding jolt on the water was the performance of the Washington crew which came from the coast to the Hudson and finished second behind the Navy, one of the greatest combinations that ever sat in a shell.
